New bursaries support thriving communities

We are excited to share the news that the Province of Nova Scotia has partnered with How We Thrive to create a bursary fund that opens the door to 50 people who couldn't otherwise attend the upcoming How We Thrive learning event (June 2-5, MSVU). Please forward this announcement to those in your network who would be keen to take advantage of this opportunity.

The bursaries reduce the fee to $30 and will be awarded based on the following criteria:

- You live in Nova Scotia.
- You work or volunteer for a small non-profit or social enterprise OR you are applying as an individual (e.g., community volunteer, student).
- You want to connect and learn with others who are passionate about their communities and engaged in making a difference.
- You have read through the Thrive home page and 2019 website and feel this gathering is right for you.
- You are able to take part in the full four days.
- You need the bursary in order to attend.

The deadline is May 3rd, and successful applicants will be notified by May 10th.

If you can contribute more than $30 or you are applying from outside Nova Scotia but within the Atlantic region, apply here for a regular Thrive scholarship.

If you are able to pay the regular fee please do so! Register by April 30 and take advantage of the earlybird rate ($575 regular, $430 nonprofit).

How We Thrive is a network of people and partners who are passionate about their communities and concerned about the future. We believe it is time to rethink and re-create systems that define our communities, economies and way of life. Our goal is to thrive—not just survive—as we co-create communities and systems that serve us all.
